

TEACHING: THE NOBLEST JOB IN SHAPING THE SOCIETY

CASE STUDY/INSIGHT

TEACHING: THE NOBLEST JOB IN SHAPING THE SOCIETY

Teachers play a vital role in moulding the students. Teachers are not only incorporating knowledge to children but also self-discipline thereby bringing up responsible citizens to the country. They are sacrificing their life for the betterment of the student. Surely, everyone had come across at least one such teacher in their lifetime. Being selfless and humble gives immense satisfaction for the teachers when they see their students achieving great heights in life. Probably, they are the only people in the world, next to parents, feeling proud and happy, when their student reach eminent positions in society.

Teachers are the second parents who take the whole responsibility of a student for making him/her a good, disciplined and educated person useful to society. As Dr Abdul Kalam Said, Students are the backbone of the future world. Teachers play a vital role in building the future generation. They impart knowledge, manners, discipline and responsibility, to understand the world and determine their positions in future.

TEACHING: THE NOBLEST JOB IN SHAPING THE SOCIETY

During preschool times, teachers cultivate the basic mannerism for the children which helps them throughout their life. The basics that are taught during lower classes in school help in building passion at different levels from high school to college, mainly during adolescent periods.

Education not only removes illiteracy but also contributes to the economy. The global literacy rate has increased to 83%. But in developing countries, it is still comparatively less, i.e., about 70%. Many teachers contribute a lot in their way to motivate and educate the students. But that alone cannot increase the literacy rate. Volunteers should come forward to help the teachers in their free times to teach uneducated adults as well as the children who would need additional support for learning in terms of say knowledge transfer and understanding. This will bring down the burden of the teachers and also give personal satisfaction to the volunteers. Anyone who teaches something good is a teacher and it is certainly a service to the nation.

TEACHING: THE NOBLEST JOB IN SHAPING THE SOCIETY

Already many NGO's and volunteer groups are doing great in helping the education of children and adults through whatever means, i.e., through teaching and/or financial. Especially during the Covid-19 period, teachers have worked very hard to teach the children online. It is certainly more difficult than teaching in-person for various practical reasons.

The teachers' job is endless in serving the students, society and public. Teaching is probably the noblest profession known. Every successful person has a good teacher behind his/her success.

Let us take a moment to appreciate the efforts taken by the teachers. If we fail to thank the teachers who are responsible for our present success, let's take time, identify them and thank them in person or at least over a phone call.